Summary

The present report contains the budget for the United Nations Office to the African Union of $10,642,000, comprising $8,875,900 to be funded from the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period from 1 July 2010 to 30 June 2011, and $1,766,100 to be funded from the programme budget for the biennium 2010-2011.

The budget provides for the deployment of 42 international staff, 22 national staff and 1 United Nations Volunteer.

The total resource requirements for the Office have been linked to the Office's objective through a number of results-based frameworks, organized according to components (substantive and support). The human resources of the Office in terms of the number of personnel have been attributed to the individual components, with the exception of the Office's executive direction and management, which can be attributed to the Office as a whole.

The explanations of variances in resource levels, both human resources and financial resources, have been linked, where applicable, to specific outputs planned by the Office.

I. Mandate and planned results

A. Overall

1. The United Nations and the African Union have developed an increasingly close partnership in addressing peace and security issues in Africa, including in the fields of peacemaking, through the coordination of support for the settlement of disputes, and peacekeeping, through coordination and mutual support in the management and deployment of peacekeeping operations. On 16 November 2006 in Addis Ababa, the Secretary-General and the African Union Chairperson signed the declaration on enhancing United Nations-African Union cooperation: framework for the 10-year capacity-building programme for the African Union (A/61/630, annex). In a letter dated 11 December 2006 from the Secretary-General to the President of the General Assembly (A/61/630), the Secretary-General stated that for the objectives in the above-mentioned declaration to be achieved, adequate funding would be essential.

2. In his report of 18 September 2009 on support to African Union peacekeeping operations authorized by the United Nations (A/64/359-S/2009/470), the Secretary-General made a number of recommendations on the political and peacekeeping partnership between the United Nations and the African Union at the strategic and operational levels, including ways in which the United Nations could further support the capacity of the African Union in the support and management of its peacekeeping operations in the field. The Secretary-General stated in his report that the integration of the various United Nations political and peacekeeping liaison and support offices in Addis Ababa would assist the Organization in developing a more effective peace and security partnership with the African Union.

3. In its resolution 63/310, the General Assembly acknowledged the contribution of the United Nations Liaison Office at Addis Ababa in strengthening coordination and cooperation between the United Nations and the African Union, as well as the need to consolidate it so as to enhance its performance in view of the expanding scope of cooperation between the United Nations and the African Union. The Assembly also emphasized the need to pursue ongoing measures to improve the effectiveness and efficiency of United Nations and African Union cooperation, and recommended the continued improvement of the field presence of the United Nations Secretariat at the headquarters of the African Union in Addis Ababa. The Assembly also recognized the need to ensure an appropriate level of representation at the United Nations Liaison Office at Addis Ababa commensurate with the increasing political integration of the African Union, the responsibilities for implementing the 10-year capacity-building programme, and coordinating the United Nations system in existing and emerging areas of cooperation in peace and security, in order to enhance the strategic and operational partnership between the United Nations and the African Union and its subregions.

4. Within this overall objective, the United Nations Office to the African Union will contribute to a number of expected accomplishments by delivering related key outputs, shown in the frameworks below. These frameworks are organized according to substantive and support components, which are derived from the existing mandates of the entities proposed to be integrated into the new Office.

B. Planning assumptions and mission support initiatives

5. There are presently four separate entities located in Addis Ababa with separately mandated responsibilities relating to peace and security: the United Nations Liaison Office, the African Union Peacekeeping Support Team, the United Nations planning team for the African Union Mission in Somalia (AMISOM) and the Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism of the African Union-United Nations Hybrid Operation in Darfur (UNAMID). It is proposed to consolidate the current operations of three of these four entities, the Liaison Office, the Support Team and the planning team, together with the administrative functions in support of the Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism, to establish in Addis Ababa a United Nations Office to the African Union. The integration of these entities would allow the United Nations to strengthen its interaction with the African Union and to establish a more cost-effective and efficient presence in Addis Ababa.

6. The United Nations Liaison Office was established pursuant to General Assembly resolution 52/220 to help coordinate United Nations technical assistance and information-sharing between the United Nations system and the secretariat of the Organization of African Unity (subsequently the African Union Commission). Its mandate includes facilitating coordination of peace and security activities in Addis Ababa, including the implementation of the Peace and Security Cluster of the 10-year capacity-building programme for the African Union, following the work of the African Union Peace and Security Council in the prevention, management and resolution of conflicts in Africa, and making policy recommendations to United Nations Headquarters on political issues requiring attention by both organizations. In addition, the Liaison Office facilitates cooperation between the United Nations and the African Union in support of electoral and democratization processes in Africa, supports the activities of Special Envoys and Representatives of the Secretary-General, when required and as requested, and provides political advice to United Nations Headquarters, as required.

7. The African Union Peacekeeping Support Team was authorized by the General Assembly in its resolution 60/268. Its mandate is to deliver appropriate technical expertise to the African Union Commission for the development of the African standby force and to support the coordination of donor assistance for the development of the force. The Support Team also provides guidance and assistance on cross-cutting issues such as doctrine and training, and coordinates within the United Nations and with other partners the provision of support for capacity-building of African peacekeeping. In this respect, its focus is supporting the long-term development of the African peace and security architecture under the Peace and Security Cluster of the 10-year capacity-building programme.

8. The United Nations planning team for AMISOM was established in the context of Security Council resolutions 1744 (2007) and 1772 (2008), which, inter alia, authorized African Union member States to establish a mission in Somalia. The mandate of the planning team is contained in Security Council resolution 1863 (2009), and was subsequently renewed by the Council in its resolutions 1872 (2009) and 1910 (2010). Its functions are to advise and assist the Strategic Planning and Management Unit of the African Union Peace Support Operations Division in the overall planning and management of AMISOM, provide strategic advice to the Unit and Division on all AMISOM-related activities, and support building of the Division's capacity and coordination between the Division and United Nations organizations working on Somalia. As specifically requested, most recently by the African Union in its note verbale of 29 April 2009, the planning team provides technical and expert assistance in the following areas: military operations and force generation, medical, aviation, police, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, security, public information, procurement, human resources, budget, contingent-owned equipment and communications and information technology.

9. The Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism of UNAMID, established pursuant to Security Council resolution 1769 (2007), is also based in Addis Ababa. The primary function of the Mechanism is to facilitate information-sharing and communication related to the operations of the hybrid mission between the United Nations and the African Union. As the Mechanism is a hybrid organization reporting to both the African Union and the United Nations, its substantive functions will not be incorporated into the integrated Office. As agreed with the African Union, the Mechanism will be co-located with the integrated Office and will rely on that Office for administrative and logistical support.

10. Pursuant to General Assembly resolution 63/310, a comprehensive review of functional requirements underpinning the peace and security partnership between the United Nations and the African Union has been undertaken, with a view to integrating the United Nations peace and security presence in Addis Ababa under a single United Nations office that would provide expert advice for various specialist groups and would result in efficiencies and economies of scale.

11. The aim of the proposed integrated Office is to enhance the partnership between the United Nations and the African Union in the area of peace and security, provide coordinated and consistent United Nations advice to the African Union on both long-term capacity-building and short-term operational support, and streamline the United Nations presence in Addis Ababa to be more cost-effective and efficient in delivering United Nations assistance to the African Union.

12. The cost estimates associated with the current arrangement of four separate offices for the 2010/11 period total $16,017,700. The cost estimates for the proposed new integrated Office and the revised structure of the Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism total $13,528,000 for the same period. Detailed costs of the current arrangements and the proposed new arrangement are illustrated in table 1.

^a The amounts in this column represent funding contained in the programme budget for the biennium 2010-2011 covering the 18-month period from 1 July 2010 to 31 December 2011.

^b The amounts in this column comprise $8,875,900 to be funded from the support account for peacekeeping operations for the period 1 July 2010 to 30 June 2011, of which $1,203,600 is included in the proposed budget for the support account for the 2010/11 period, and $1,766,100 is to be funded from the programme budget for the biennium 2010-2011, of which $1,109,500 is included in the approved programme budget for the biennium 2010-2011.

Abbreviations: JSCM, Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism; UNLO, United Nations Liaison Office; AUPST, African Union Peacekeeping Support Team; UNPT, United Nations planning team for AMISOM.

13. The current funding arrangements for the above-mentioned four offices are presently drawn from four different budgets. The United Nations Liaison Office is funded from the regular budget, the African Union Peacekeeping Support Team is funded from the support account for peacekeeping operations, the United Nations planning team for AMISOM is funded from the budget for financing support for AMISOM and the Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism is funded from the budget for UNAMID. The proposed integrated Office offers more transparency to Member States in respect of funding arrangements. The new entity in Addis Ababa, consisting of 65 posts, will be funded from only the support account for peacekeeping operations and the regular budget.

14. In the proposed new structure for the United Nations Office to the African Union, eight posts (1 ASG, 1 D-2, 1 P-5, 2 P-4, 1 Field Service and 2 Local level) are proposed to be funded from the regular budget, effective 1 July 2010, derived from the existing United Nations Liaison Office. The current staffing complement of the Liaison Office includes five posts (1 D-2, 1 P-5, 1 P-3 and 2 Local level). The proposed integration would require the establishment of three new posts (1 ASG, 1 P-4 and 1 Field Service) and the reclassification of the P-3 post to the P-4 level.

The remaining 57 posts and operational costs will be funded from the support account for peacekeeping operations.

15. As the substantive function of the Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism remains part of UNAMID, financing related to that function will remain in the UNAMID budget. However, as previously mentioned, administrative support for the Mechanism will be provided by the new Office and the Mechanism will be co-located with the new Office.

16. The rationalization of the existing peace and security components in Addis Ababa will result in the elimination of a number of existing posts and related savings will be made. The current arrangements consist of 104 posts and positions in the four entities (United Nations Liaison Office, African Union Peacekeeping Support Team, United Nations planning team for AMISOM and Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism) and 4 United Nations Volunteers, while the proposed integrated office will consist of 65 posts and the Mechanism will consist of 11 posts. All mandates established by the General Assembly and the Security Council currently performed by the Liaison Office, the Peacekeeping Support Team and the planning team for AMISOM will be preserved and implemented by the proposed Office.

17. The new integrated Office will provide a single support structure for all United Nations personnel working on peace and security issues in Addis Ababa. In accordance with General Assembly resolution 63/310, the structure is proposed to be headed at a level commensurate with the need to ensure effective representation and facilitation of dialogue with the African Union, Member States and other organizations based in Addis Ababa. The posts within the proposed structure have been identified to meet the priority needs of the African Union to develop an enhanced capacity to address issues of peace and security. In addition, the structure will be flexible and posts included now may be adjusted to meet new requirements or removed if their function is no longer required.

18. The structure of the proposed Office has both a substantive and a support component. The substantive component will provide advice and support to the African Union in the areas of political affairs, operational planning and administrative planning. The support component will provide administrative and logistical support to the proposed new integrated Office, and to the Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism. The proposed Office will have three units: a Political Affairs Unit; an Operational Planning and Advisory Unit; and an Administrative Planning and Advisory Unit. These three Units, together with a Mission Support Unit, will be overseen by the Executive Direction and Management Office.

C. Regional mission cooperation

19. The proposed integrated Office will provide an improved mechanism for cooperation at the regional level, primarily with the African Union and subregional organizations throughout Africa. The Office will also coordinate with United Nations peacekeeping operations on the continent, namely UNAMID, the United Nations Mission in the Central African Republic and Chad (MINURCAT), the United Nations Mission in Liberia, the United Nations Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara, the United Nations Mission in the Sudan, the United Nations Operation in Côte d'Ivoire and the United Nations Organization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUC). In so doing, the Office will enhance United Nations peace and security relations with the African Union. While it is proposed that the Joint Support and Coordination Mechanism in UNAMID will remain separate from the integrated Office, the latter will provide support if requested in areas in which the Mechanism does not have expertise.

20. As the proposed Office will implement the existing mandate of the United Nations planning team to provide technical and expert advice to the African Union in the planning and deployment of AMISOM, it will maintain close links with the United Nations Support Office for AMISOM (UNSOA) and the United Nations Political Office for Somalia, both based in Nairobi, and other relevant actors to ensure consistent, comprehensive and well-coordinated planning support and advice to AMISOM.

21. In supporting dialogue with the African Union Commission, as well as with the regional economic communities and the secretariat of the African Union Panel of the Wise on conflict prevention and electoral issues, the proposed integrated Office will also coordinate with the United Nations special political missions on the continent, including the United Nations Integrated Office in Burundi, the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Guinea-Bissau, the United Nations Integrated Peacebuilding Office in Sierra Leone, the United Nations Office for West Africa and the United Nations Peacebuilding Office in the Central African Republic.

D. Partnerships

22. The proposed Office will be the focal point for United Nations support to the African Union, but it will not be the only United Nations presence in Addis Ababa. To ensure that efforts are effective and not duplicative, the Office will coordinate its work with the full range of United Nations actors, particularly in relation to the Peace and Security Cluster, led by the Department of Political Affairs, of the 10-year capacity-building programme, the members of which are the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Human Rights (OHCHR), the Office of the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), the Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations (FAO), the International Labour Organization (ILO), the International Organization for Migration (IOM), the Joint United Nations Programme on HIV/AIDS (UNAIDS), the World Food Programme (WFP) and the World Health Organization (WHO), as well as the Department of Peacekeeping Operations.

23. In providing the African Union with a full range of capacity-building support, the new Office will also liaise and coordinate with other clusters within the 10-year capacity-building programme. These include the Advocacy and Communications Cluster (led by the Office of the Special Adviser on Africa); the Agriculture, Food Security and Rural Development Cluster (FAO); the Environment, Population and Urbanization Cluster (United Nations Human Settlements Programme); the Governance Cluster (United Nations Development Programme); the Human Resources Development, Employment and HIV/AIDS Cluster (United Nations Children's Fund); the Industry, Trade and Market Access Cluster (United Nations Industrial Development Organization); the Infrastructure Development: Water and Sanitation, Energy, Transport and Information and Communications Technology Cluster (Economic Commission for Africa (ECA)); and the Science and Technology

Cluster (United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization and ECA).

24. The proposed Office will also participate in the mechanisms in Addis Ababa that coordinate donors and other partners, so as to ensure that United Nations support complements, and does not duplicate, the efforts of others engaged in building the capacity of the African Union, including the European Union. The Office will also maintain liaison with external partners and relevant stakeholders on providing technical and expert advice on the planning and deployment of AMISOM, including meetings with potential and existing police- and troop-contributing countries, donors and Somali interlocutors.

Office of the Assistant Secretary-General

International staff: One ASG post, one D-2 post, one P-4 post, and two Field Service level posts

National staff: Two Local level posts

26. The Head of Office will be responsible for leading the United Nations support to the African Union in the area of peace and security, and will represent the Secretary-General in Addis Ababa in that regard, as appropriate. The Head of Office will report to the Secretary-General through the Department of Political Affairs, keeping the Department of Field Support and the Department of Peacekeeping Operations informed on daily administrative and management issues of the Office. On matters relevant to field support and peacekeeping, he/she will report to the Secretary-General through the respective Under-Secretaries-General. All technical backstopping on peacekeeping support and on political and mediation issues will be performed by the Department of Peacekeeping Operations, the Department of Field Support and the Department of Political Affairs, respectively. The Office will maintain direct contact with the relevant offices at United Nations Headquarters. Under the leadership and guidance of the Head of Office, the Office will liaise with the African Union and with other partners in Addis Ababa and provide both short-term support to ongoing African Union operations and long-term capacity-building support in peacekeeping. The Head of Office will work closely with the senior leadership of the African Union Commission including, as necessary, with the Chairperson, Deputy Chairperson and Commissioners, as well as with members of the African Union Peace and Security Council. The Head of Office will also engage with capacity-building partners at the highest level, assume responsibility for implementing a coordinated plan for United Nations support across a range of functions, including conflict prevention, operational support and capacity-building support, and coordinate with United Nations peacekeeping missions and political offices on issues related to the provision of support to the African Union. To fulfil these responsibilities and, as requested by the General Assembly in its resolution 63/310, to ensure that an appropriate level of representation is provided, this post is requested at the Assistant Secretary-General level to engage effectively with the senior leadership of the African Union Commission and other partners in Addis Ababa at the highest level.

27. Owing to the diversity and level of responsibilities that the Head of Office is required to perform, it is proposed that a position of Special Assistant to the Head of Office (P-4) be established. The Special Assistant will support the Head of Office in the execution of his/her duties, liaise with external organizations and Member States as appropriate, and facilitate the smooth operation of the Office, in cooperation with the Chief of Staff. The Head of Office would also be supported by a Personal Assistant (Field Service) and an Administrative Assistant.

28. Reporting to the Head of Office and acting as his/her deputy, the Chief of Staff will be responsible for ensuring the integrated and coherent functioning of the Office across all components. United Nations support to the African Union covers a wide range of issues that are closely interlinked and an integrated approach is needed to address them effectively. While a wide array of technical advice will be provided through the three substantive Units within the Office, the Chief of Staff will serve as the coordinator, to ensure that the support provided to the African Union through the three Units of the Office is effectively integrated and mutually reinforcing. To that end, the Chief of Staff will oversee the core mechanisms and processes that enable the delivery of the Office's mandate, in particular planning, policy coordination, senior-level decision-making and information management. The Chief of Staff will also oversee the support elements of the Office. It is therefore proposed to establish the post of Chief of Staff at the D-2 level. The Chief of Staff will be supported by two Administrative Assistants (one Field Service and one Local level).

Component 1: provision of advice and support to the African Union

29. Within the component for provision of advice and support to the African Union, the Office will provide advice and support from its three Units. The Political Affairs Unit, through its experts, will provide guidance and support in the fields of political affairs, security sector reform, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, and public information. The Operational Planning and Advisory Unit will support the African Union with its experts in military planning, military logistics planning, military medical planning, force generation, police, mine action and security planning. The experts from the Administrative Planning and Advisory Unit will be responsible for providing advice and support in the areas of finance, procurement, human resources, information technology and communications, training and logistics.

Parties to the conflict cooperate and are willing to resolve their disputes peacefully; peacekeeping partners provide the necessary support; and the security environment permits the establishment or continuation of peacekeeping operations and support of AMISOM. In addition, there is continued political will and commitment of the member States of the United Nations and the African Union to promoting cooperation with regional and subregional organizations in the areas of peace and security

Political Affairs Unit

International staff: one P-5 post and six P-4 posts

National staff: one national General Service post

30. The Political Affairs Unit is headed by a Senior Political Affairs Officer supported by six Political Affairs Officers and one Team Assistant. The main responsibility of the Political Affairs Unit is to liaise with and strengthen cooperation between the African Union and the United Nations in the area of peace and security, as well as to provide technical advice and support to the African Union in the areas of mediation, good offices and conflict prevention, elections, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration, and public information. While enhancing its support in the political field, the Political Affairs Unit would assume the existing responsibilities of the United Nations Liaison Office and part of the functions of the United Nations planning team for AMISOM, namely disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and public information, which are areas specifically requested by the African Union in the context of support to AMISOM.

31. As the Head of Office will require significant support and advice on political matters, there is a need for a strong political unit, which is proposed to be headed by a Senior Political Affairs Officer (P-5). The Senior Political Affairs Officer will assist the Head of Office and the Chief of Staff in the overall management of the Unit. The Senior Political Affairs Officer will ensure cohesion among, and coordinated support by, the Unit to the African Union and the regional economic communities on cross-cutting peace and security issues, as well as on joint ongoing United Nations-African Union regional economic communities country-specific peace efforts. The Officer will coordinate the preparation of political briefings for the Head of Office and for senior United Nations officials on mission to Addis Ababa. He/she will play an important role in enhancing interaction with the African Union Peace and Security Council and its subsidiary bodies, as well as with relevant African Union Commission directorates. In addition, the Officer will assist the Head of Office in liaising with other United Nations field presences in the region as necessary. Following the decision of the United Nations Security Council and the African Union Peace and Security Council to hold annual meetings, this Officer will also coordinate preparations for these meetings in close coordination with the United Nations and the secretariat of the African Union Peace and Security Council.

32. The 10-year capacity-building programme for the African Union is the overall framework of United Nations-African Union cooperation, and it covers a wide range of areas of support from the United Nations system to the African Union. Coordination of the programmatic activities within the Peace and Security Cluster among a wide variety of stakeholders (FAO, ILO, IOM, OHCHR, Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs, Office of the Special Adviser on Africa, Peacebuilding Support Office, UNAIDS, United Nations Environment Programme, UNHCR, WFP and WHO) is one of the main challenges for the implementation of the framework. The Political Affairs Officer (Coordination/Liaison) (P-4) will support the Head of Office, who co-chairs the Peace and Security Cluster on behalf of the United Nations, in ensuring cohesion in the implementation of these activities. The incumbent will also help to strengthen the nexus between peace and security and development within the framework and will reinforce the relationship with the regional coordination mechanisms. This Officer will also play an important role in working with Cluster members to strengthen the linkages between short-term operational activities and the long-term objectives of the United Nations-African Union strategic partnership. The incumbent would need to be an appropriate interlocutor with the African Union and officers from other agencies and programmes participating in this Cluster. The Officer will also engage with regional economic communities within the Peace and Security Cluster and enhance the tripartite partnership among the United Nations, the African Union and the regional economic communities. This post is reclassified from the P-3 level to the P-4 level.

33. While the first Political Affairs Officer focuses on the general coordination and liaison functions in support of the Head of Office, the Political Affairs Officer (Mediation and Conflict Prevention) (P-4) will be responsible for supporting the Head of Office in the areas of early warning, strategic conflict prevention initiatives, mediation and conflict resolution in order to enhance the Office's efforts to address ongoing and emerging conflicts in the region. The Political Affairs Officer will liaise closely with a range of counterparts and partners, including United Nations special political missions, United Nations country teams, the African Union, the regional economic communities and other subregional organizations, Member States and civil society organizations to address regional threats to peace and security by collecting and analysing information and channelling conflict prevention assistance and mediation expertise accordingly. The Officer will also contribute to strengthening the good offices role of the United Nations by facilitating dialogue and mediation efforts at various levels. The United Nations has supported the African Union Commission in drafting a mediation strategy for Africa for the approval of the African Union legislative bodies, and the Officer will assist in implementing this strategy. The incumbent will also engage with the African Union Commission on conflict prevention issues. In addition, the Officer will also assist with advising the secretariat of the Panel of the Wise. This is a critical role, particularly given the fact that the Panel is one of the pillars of the African peace and security architecture.

34. In mid-2008, a Democracy and Electoral Assistance Unit was established within the African Union Directorate for Political Affairs. The Unit is responsible for coordinating and implementing all African Union activities aimed at promoting democracy and democratic elections in Africa. The Political Affairs Officer (Elections) (P-4) will allow for permanent engagement and advice to further build the capacity of the Unit and support efforts to implement the recommendations of the report of the Panel of the Wise on election-related conflicts in Africa. While monitoring electoral activities on the continent, the incumbent will also help to ensure coordination with United Nations agencies, funds and programmes working with the African Union on matters related to elections. The incumbent will follow closely and assess progress in the implementation of the 2010-2011 workplan for United Nations assistance to the African Union, which is part of the 10-year capacity-building programme. This Officer will provide an opportunity to enhance interaction with, and create opportunities for training and advice for African Union electoral observers, including members of the Pan-African Parliament. The incumbent will also offer support on electoral issues to United Nations field presences in the region. The need to have a dedicated Political/Electoral Affairs Officer within the integrated Office is underscored by the fact that approximately 60 per cent of United Nations electoral support goes to African countries. The African Union is therefore an indispensable partner on election-related issues and their relation to conflicts. In his 14 August 2009 report to the General Assembly

(A/64/304), the Secretary-General outlined ways in which the United Nations was working to build the capacity of the African Union's Electoral Assistance Division. This support, which the Department of Political Affairs has been providing to the African Union through consultants, would thus be continued through the Political Affairs Officer position. In addition, because of the close link between elections and conflict in Africa, the Officer will be a resource for the Head of Office in preparing United Nations briefings on election-related matters.

35. During the African Union Summit held in January-February 2008, Heads of State expressly encouraged the African Union Commission to develop a comprehensive African Union policy framework on security sector reform (see decision Assembly/AU/Dec.177(X)). To lead this effort, the African Union Commission has established a security sector reform capacity, consisting of one full-time professional officer. The African Union Commission has explicitly requested the support of the United Nations to assist in preparing this framework and in building the capacities of the African Union Commission, field liaison offices and African Union-United Nations hybrid operations in the area of security sector reform.

36. To undertake these tasks, the United Nations and the African Union have developed a strategic collaboration on security sector reform and have identified a number of activities to be undertaken jointly over a three-year period. These activities are articulated in a joint proposal for multi-donor funding developed by the United Nations and the African Union Commission. The African Union Commission has requested that the United Nations provide capacity based in Addis Ababa to support the implementation of this strategic collaboration. The primary role of the Security Sector Reform Officer (P-4) will be to provide expert technical advice and capacity-building support to the African Union Commission during the preparation and implementation of the African Union's policy framework on security sector reform, as requested by the African Union Commission. The Officer will also provide strategic and operational advice related to security sector reform in support of African Union peacekeeping missions, where appropriate.

37. The Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration Officer (P-4) will provide strategic and operational advice on matters related to disarmament, demobilization and reintegration to the African Union Commission and to AMISOM, subject to the continuation of the latter's mandate. Disarmament, demobilization and reintegration and associated programmes to manage weapons will be central to the African Union's efforts to stabilize Somalia, and a planner with expertise in this area was assigned to the United Nations planning team for AMISOM at the request of the African Union Commission. In recognition of this, disarmament, demobilization and reintegration has been included in AMISOM's mandate and the Transitional Federal Government has established a Ministry for Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration. Although the security situation has so far precluded the implementation of such an undertaking, it is vital that operational plans that take into account the specific nature of the Somali context be prepared and constantly updated. This requires technical expertise that is not currently available within the African Union and the development of disarmament, demobilization and reintegration plans in Somalia must draw upon a broad range of experience in other post-conflict settings. The training and advice provided by the Disarmament, Demobilization and Reintegration Officer will also serve to more broadly expand the African Union's capacity in this field, which would be of use in other African Union peace operations.

38. The Public Information Officer (P-4) was also deployed within the United Nations planning team at the request of the African Union Commission. The Public Information Officer will provide strategic and operational advice on matters related to public information to the African Union Commission and to AMISOM, including assisting in the development and implementation of the public information and media capabilities, strategies and policies of the African Union, and in the strengthening of strategic coordination within the African Union Commission and with external partners working on public information. Taking into account the increasing importance of the media and public information in armed conflict, as observed in Somalia, the overarching goal in this area is to develop a more aggressive media strategy to enhance the visibility of African Union peace operations and ensure that relevant populations and all other actors are fully aware of the mandates of these operations.

Operational Planning and Advisory Unit

International staff: one P-5 post and eight P-4 posts

National staff: one national General Service post

39. The Operational Planning and Advisory Unit will comprise eight officers led by a Senior Planning Officer. The main responsibility of this Unit is to provide technical advice and support to the African Union in the areas of military and police operations and mine action and security-related matters. The Unit covers all responsibilities previously performed by the five military, two police and one security planners in the African Union Peacekeeping Support Team and the United Nations planning team. The Unit is supported by one Team Assistant (National staff).

40. Under the direction of the Head of Office and the Chief of Staff, the Senior Planning Officer (P-5) will supervise and coordinate the activities of the military, police, mine action and security officers within the Unit in the delivery of expert and technical advice to the African Union Commission, both at Headquarters and in the field, in developing its capacity to plan, deploy and manage complex peacekeeping operations, within the framework of the 10-year capacity-building programme, in particular the development of the African standby force. In addition, the Unit, under the direction of the Senior Planning Officer, would provide expert and technical advice in the planning, deployment, management and operations of ongoing African Union peacekeeping operations, including AMISOM. He/she will also serve as the focal point for overall planning and strategic advice to the African Union on matters related to AMISOM. The Senior Planning Officer will also be expected to mentor his/her counterparts in matters concerning joint planning, mission structure analysis and mission concepts of operations, as well as estimates of resource requirements for current and future operations.

41. The four Planning Officers (P-4) will undertake the tasks that have been performed by the five military advisers in the United Nations planning team and the African Union Peacekeeping Support Team, including providing technical planning advice to the African Union in their respective fields of expertise and guidance in the drafting of key documents, including, but not limited to, concepts of operations, mission-specific guidelines, Force Commander directives, status of mission/forces agreements and memorandums of understanding with troop-contributing countries. In the integrated Office, they will not only support ongoing operations but will also provide assistance to future operations, including the operationalization of the African standby force.

42. More specifically, the Military Planning Officer (P-4) will provide strategic advice to his/her African Union counterparts and the African Union Peace and Security Directorate on military planning for peacekeeping operations. The Officer will also be expected to mentor his/her counterparts in matters concerning contingency planning, force structure analysis, concepts of operations and estimates of force requirements for current and future operations. The Military Logistics Planning Officer (P-4) will provide strategic advice to his/her African Union counterparts on all matters concerning mission support requirements, contingent-owned equipment, host country support issues and integrated mission support structures. The Officer will also be required to provide advice on mobility issues, military vertical and horizontal engineering tasks and resource requirements, as well as to support capacity-building for the military logistics planning office of the African Union Peace Support Operations Division in order to improve procedures for liaison with troop-contributing countries and host countries and the preparation of troops for deployment to peacekeeping operations led by the African Union. The Officer will also be expected to mentor his/her counterparts in matters concerning contingency planning, support structure analysis, logistic concepts of operations, and estimates of force requirements for current and future operations. The function of the Military Aviation Planning Officer in the United Nations planning team will be absorbed into this post.

43. The Force Generation Planning Officer (P-4) will provide strategic advice to his/her African Union counterparts on all matters concerning force generation, raising and maintaining force levels, including coordination with the regional economic communities, and rotation and repatriation processes for both formed units and individuals deployed in ongoing missions. The incumbent will also advise on raising forces for planned missions, developing force generation processes to support the African standby force and supporting capacity-building for the force generation office of the African Union Peace Support Operations Division in order to improve procedures for liaison with troop-contributing countries, and the preparation of troops to the standards required for deployment to peacekeeping operations led by the African Union. He/she will also develop processes for monitoring the readiness of troops to deploy on African standby force missions. The Military Medical Planning Officer (P-4) will provide strategic advice to his/her African Union counterparts and the African Union Peace and Security Directorate on all matters concerning medical support requirements, contingent-owned equipment and host country support issues, medical support planning for peacekeeping operations, including matters pertaining to level II, level III and level IV hospitals, medical evacuation, and health and hygiene of troops and individually deployed military personnel. The Officer will also be expected to mentor his/her counterparts in matters concerning contingency planning, medical structure analysis, planning for medical evacuation and repatriation, and estimates of force requirements for current and future operations. The Officer will also be required to support capacity-building for the military medical planning office of the African Union Peace Support Operations Division in order to improve procedures for liaison with troop-contributing countries and host countries and the preparation of troops to the standards required for deployment to peacekeeping operations led by the African Union.

44. It is critical that police support and advice is provided to the African Union with a view to ensuring that professional policing standards are injected into current and future African Union peacekeeping operations. The Office will therefore provide expertise to the African Union police components for the generation and development of tools to help monitor the overall readiness of the African standby force. Existing United Nations policing functions in support of the African Union are to be consolidated into a single police planning and advisory capacity, which consists of one Planning Officer and one Police Adviser, to support more broadly the police components of African Union missions.

45. The Planning Officer (Police) (P-4) will focus on support and advice to ongoing African Union missions, including AMISOM, and provide police planning guidance and advice on the establishment, operation and assessment of police components of African Union missions. The Police Adviser (P-4) will focus on developing the African Union's police capacity within the overall framework of the 10-year capacity-building programme with specific emphasis on the police capacity needed by the African standby force. While the Planning Officer should place more emphasis on planning and management of ongoing operations, mainly covering the previous tasks under the United Nations planning team, the Police Adviser will work on designing concepts of operations, formulating strategic guidelines and preparing training manuals for future operations, including the African standby force.

46. The Security Officer (Security Planning) (P-4) will provide strategic and operational advice for building the capacity of the African Union Commission for mission planning and the management of ongoing and future African Union peacekeeping operations in the substantive area of security of civilian personnel. Specifically, the Officer will provide support for development of security management concepts and systems, in collaboration with the Department of Safety and Security of the Secretariat and the United Nations Security Focal Point, including through the sharing of United Nations security experience and best practices. The Officer will also assist in the development and conducting of African Union security training programmes, the assessment of security requirements and the identification of the needs of the African Union, with a view to advising the African Union on potential security concerns. The Security Officer will also provide advice on the interface between the security management system and military and police force protection, including security threat and risk assessment and risk mitigation measures.

47. The Mine Action Officer (P-4) will provide advice to the African Union Commission on the development of mine action policies, operational strategies, aims, goals and objectives. The Mine Action Officer will also assist the African Union and its troop-contributing countries in the development of advanced capability and policies for the disposal of explosive ordnance and improvised explosive devices and to counter improvised explosive devices. In this connection, it is important to note that to attain the overarching objectives of missions it is essential to foster the capacity to determine requirements in terms of the size and scope of mine action activities to support African Union missions, including AMISOM.

48. Based on recent experience in Somalia, particularly the 17 September 2009 suicide bomb attack on AMISOM headquarters that resulted in more than 20 fatalities, including AMISOM personnel, the African Union has sought to increase knowledge on measures that can be taken to protect personnel and premises effectively and expertise to counter the threat of improvised explosive devices. Given the persistent nature of the threat, support in the areas of security and mine action is urgently and continuously required.

Administrative Planning and Advisory Unit

International staff: one P-5 post and six P-4 posts

National staff: one national General Service post

49. The Administrative Planning and Advisory Unit will comprise six officers led by a Senior Administrative Officer. The main responsibility of this Unit is to provide technical advice and support to the African Union Commission in the development of its institutional and operational capacity in the areas of mission-related administration, information technology, communications, training, logistics and contingent-owned equipment. These officers will be responsible for advising, assisting and liaising with African Union counterparts regarding ongoing and future peace support operations, and requirements in support of the African peace and security architecture, including the African standby force. They will liaise closely with other partners, in particular with UNSOA in order to ensure that United Nations logistics support will be effectively received by AMISOM. The Unit is supported by one Team Assistant (National staff).

50. The Senior Administrative Officer (P-5), in addition to supervising the team of officers, will provide overall advice to the African Union on administrative matters. There will be a total of six officers within the Unit. The Human Resources Officer (P-4) will provide the African Union Commission with advice on human resources issues to support the development of its institutional capacity. In her/his advisory role, he/she will contribute to the enhancement of human resources management of the Commission by contributing to the African Union United Nations experience and knowledge in human resources management issues and lessons learned. The Information Technology and Communications Officer (P-4) will advise the African Union on the provision of communications and information technology requirements. The incumbent will assist the African Union with the planning and definition of requirements for provision of communications and information technology services, including for AMISOM. The incumbent will also provide advice related to procurement of communications and information technology for AMISOM and will ensure effective coordination among the United Nations, external partners and the African Union in the context of communications and information technology support. The Logistics Officer (Logistics and Contingent-Owned Equipment) (P-4) will advise and liaise with the African Union on the development and implementation of logistics policies and procedures for the Peace Support Operations Division of the African Union and AMISOM. The incumbent will provide support and advice on design and implementation of coordination mechanisms for multifunctional logistics support, and expert technical advice to the African Union Commission in terms of logistics support to ongoing and planned peacekeeping operations, the African standby force, a continental logistics base, and other logistical areas of interest. The Logistics Officer will advise on development and implementation of mechanisms for contingent-owned equipment and will assist with technical expertise in the development of draft logistics institutional policies and guidance related to contingent-owned equipment, memorandums of understanding, letters of assist, status of mission and status of forces agreements, standard operating procedures, concepts of operations, force requirements and various other partnership agreements. This position will cover the functions of both the Logistics Adviser in the African Union Peacekeeping Support Team and the Contingent-Owned Equipment Planner in the United Nations planning team for AMISOM.

51. The Training Officer (P-4) will advise the African Union on the development of training needs analyses to ensure that training is accurately targeted and resources are used to the best effect, and will advise on the development of training policies and of doctrine and standardization, including facilitating training events, as appropriate, in consultation and coordination with other capacity-building partners. This support will also include assistance in refining training standards both for African Union Commission personnel and in relation to the peace and security architecture overall, and advice on the development of the annual training and implementation plan for the African standby force. The Officer will assist the African Union Commission to develop its integral training capacity, identify and advise on potential training opportunities that might be of relevance to African Union personnel, and coordinate lessons-learned efforts of the Office as a whole.
